

“I like exploring what’s out there.”

KASSITY LIU E'09

Kassity Liu E'09 wants a broad education. “That’s how I discover what interests me most,” she said. Kassity planned to major in electrical engineering, but while she was interning at the hospital, she became interested in how much heart transplants have in common with circuits. She also discovered, during a semester abroad, an interest in economics, so now she’s a biomedical engineering/economics double major.

DUKE'S FINANCIAL AID INITIATIVE

Kassity grew up in Sugar Land, Texas, and her financial aid package means her family doesn’t have to struggle to pay for her college education. In fact, Duke’s package was the most generous one she was offered, and this fall, when Duke implements a series of enhancements to need-based aid, her grant will grow and her loan will shrink. “I fell in love with Duke. I would have been so sad if I couldn’t have come here after I was accepted.”
