

Gifts of Privately Held Securities

Donating family venture and other closely held business interests

Charitable gifts of appreciated stock or other ownership interests in a privately held C Corporation, S Corporation, LLC or Limited Partnership may help you meet your philanthropic goals. These assets are sometimes referred to as family, venture, or closely held securities.

BENEFITS

Duke accepts gifts of privately held securities – directly or via a pass-through charity. Benefits may include:

- Receive an income tax deduction (appraised value) for an outright gift.
- Reduce estate and gift taxes (transfer taxes) in some cases.
- Avoid the capital gains taxes you would incur if you sold these assets.
- Support the area of Duke you feel most passionate about.

HOW IT WORKS

Generally speaking, if you donate appreciated stock or other business interests owned for one year or more, your income tax deduction will be based on the fair market value of those assets, and you avoid taxes on the capital gains.

In some cases, Duke will not be subject to tax on the appreciation, and the full value of your gift will be available for the purpose you designate at Duke!

Avoiding capital gains taxes—combined with the income tax deduction you receive for your gift—lowers the “out of pocket” cost of your gift. Consider a gift of $100,000 in closely held C corporation stock (owned longer than one year) that has a tax basis of $10,000. With tax savings, the cost of making the $100,000 gift may be as low as $41,550 (or lower with state tax savings). See the chart on the reverse side.
